The Public Libraries of Saginaw’s annual Summer Reading Program, “Tails and Tales,” is set to kick off this June! The free, animal-themed program will feature inspiring virtual adventures, plus a reading challenge for all ages.

Starting June 7 and running through August 7, participants can pick up age-appropriate reading records at any library branch. Four separate programs are available:

- an early literacy program for Birth through Age 3
- a children’s program for Preschool through 6th grade
- a teen program for students in 7th grade through 12th grade
- an adult program for ages 18 and up.

Participants can log time spent reading or listening to someone else read. Prizes for completion of the program can be picked up between June 14 and August 14. All prizes are limited and subject to availability.

Library staff are partnering with other community organizations to create some safe, fun, and educational events throughout the summer. Stay tuned to the library’s website event calendar and social media channels for storytimes, crafts, puppet shows, and more!

For more information, visit www.saginawlibrary.org or contact any Public Libraries of Saginaw branch.

More than 150 libraries throughout Michigan have posted descriptions of interesting and unusual animals on their websites (see www.saginawlibrary.org/teens for our animal).

Teens will search the websites of participating libraries to find the descriptions and use the Field Guide provided on MiLibraryQuest’s website to identify the animals. They can enter for the chance to win a prize from their local library after identifying at least 20 animals. Libraries will also display a MiLibraryQuest poster inside their building which will have a special animal teens can enter for an additional chance to win.

A Song for a New Day

Adult Fiction
Luce Cannon once had a hit record in the Before Times. Her band played “the last big concert” on the night society began to fall apart.

After terrorist attacks and a pandemic forced people to retreat to their homes to stay safe, Luce went underground, sponsoring small-scale basement shows that attract local talent. It’s not what it once was, but at least it is live music with a real crowd.

Rosemary Laws has vague memories of a time when things were different, but most of her schooling and social life has taken place online. Then, she starts a new career as a talent scout, searching for new acts to record for immersive virtual reality concerts. Getting out of her house, traveling to new cities, and searching for illegal music shows is way out of Rosemary’s comfort zone — but when she finds herself at one of Luce’s concerts, she discovers how little she understood about the connection between a musician and a live audience. Once she realizes what she’s been missing, she’s eager to share it with the world.

Director’s Note

It is so important for children to keep their minds active during the summer months! That is one reason we are so excited to bring our Summer Reading Program to you every year. This year’s program, “Tails and Tales,” kicks off Monday, June 7 at all of our branches. But Summer Reading isn’t just for the kids. We have an age-appropriate reading challenge for all ages — babies through adults. We’re working hard to ensure your family has a safe, fun, and happy summer with the Public Libraries of Saginaw!
